

MICRO NATION CHALLENGE 3

"The architect's role is to fight for a better world, where he can produce an architecture that serves everyone and not just a group of privileged people."

- Oscar Niemeyer

When COVID-19 hit us, it hit us hard. Many lives were affected. Many businesses went down, many people lost their jobs, and a lot of them lost their lives. Government took various steps to compensate its peoples' loss. Many schemes were launched, many funds were raised. A lot of NGOs (Non Government Organizations) came forward to help. Every person helped the needy in whatever way it was possible.

But, are only humans effected from this? Are only humans dying?

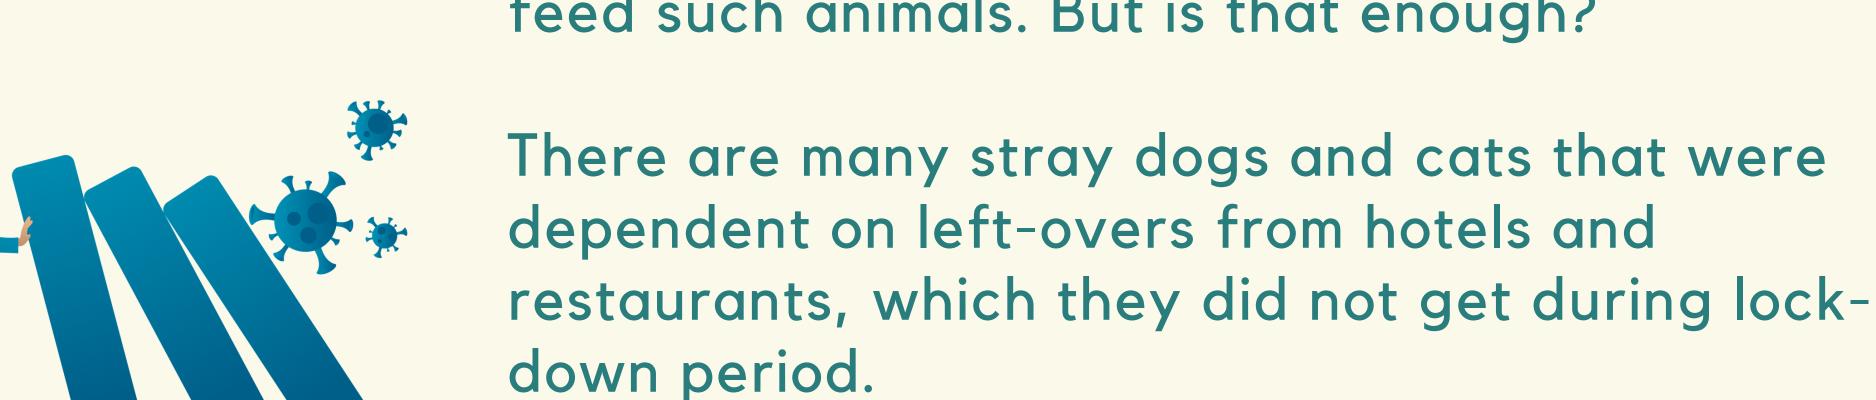

To find the answer, let's just go for a 2 minute walk down your street. What did you see? Who else lives in these streets apart from humans?

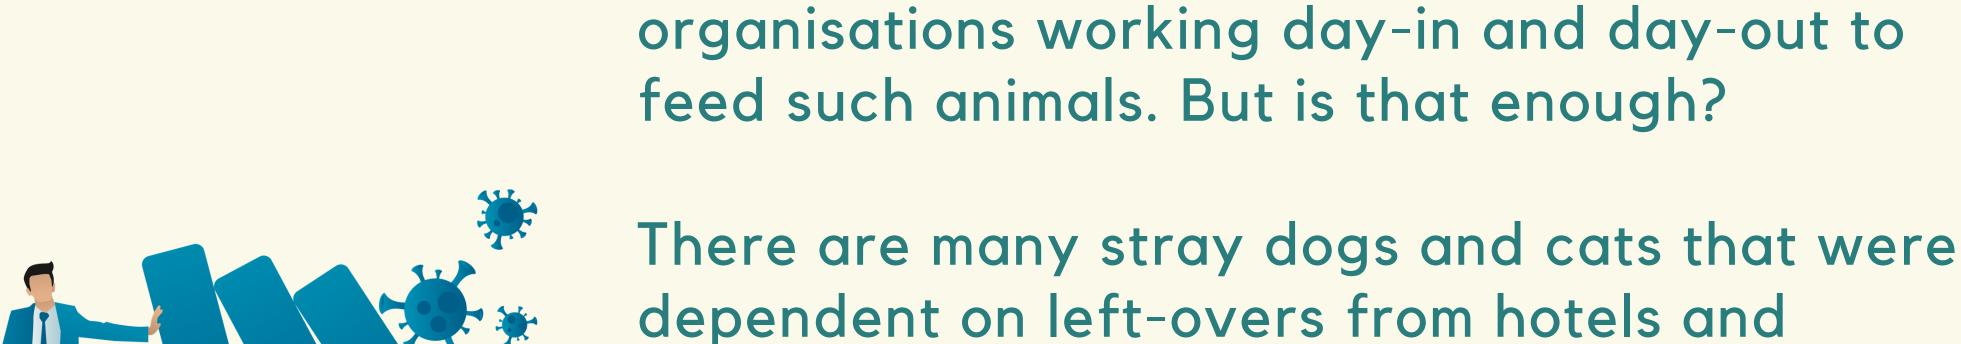

Yes, stray animals.

According to the global stats, After COVID-19 hit the world, 2,56,374 stray dogs died due to hunger. Around 20,000 pet animals like dogs, cats and even cows at milk dairies were left on streets because their owner did not have money to feed them.

No doubt, there were NGOs and other

What about them!

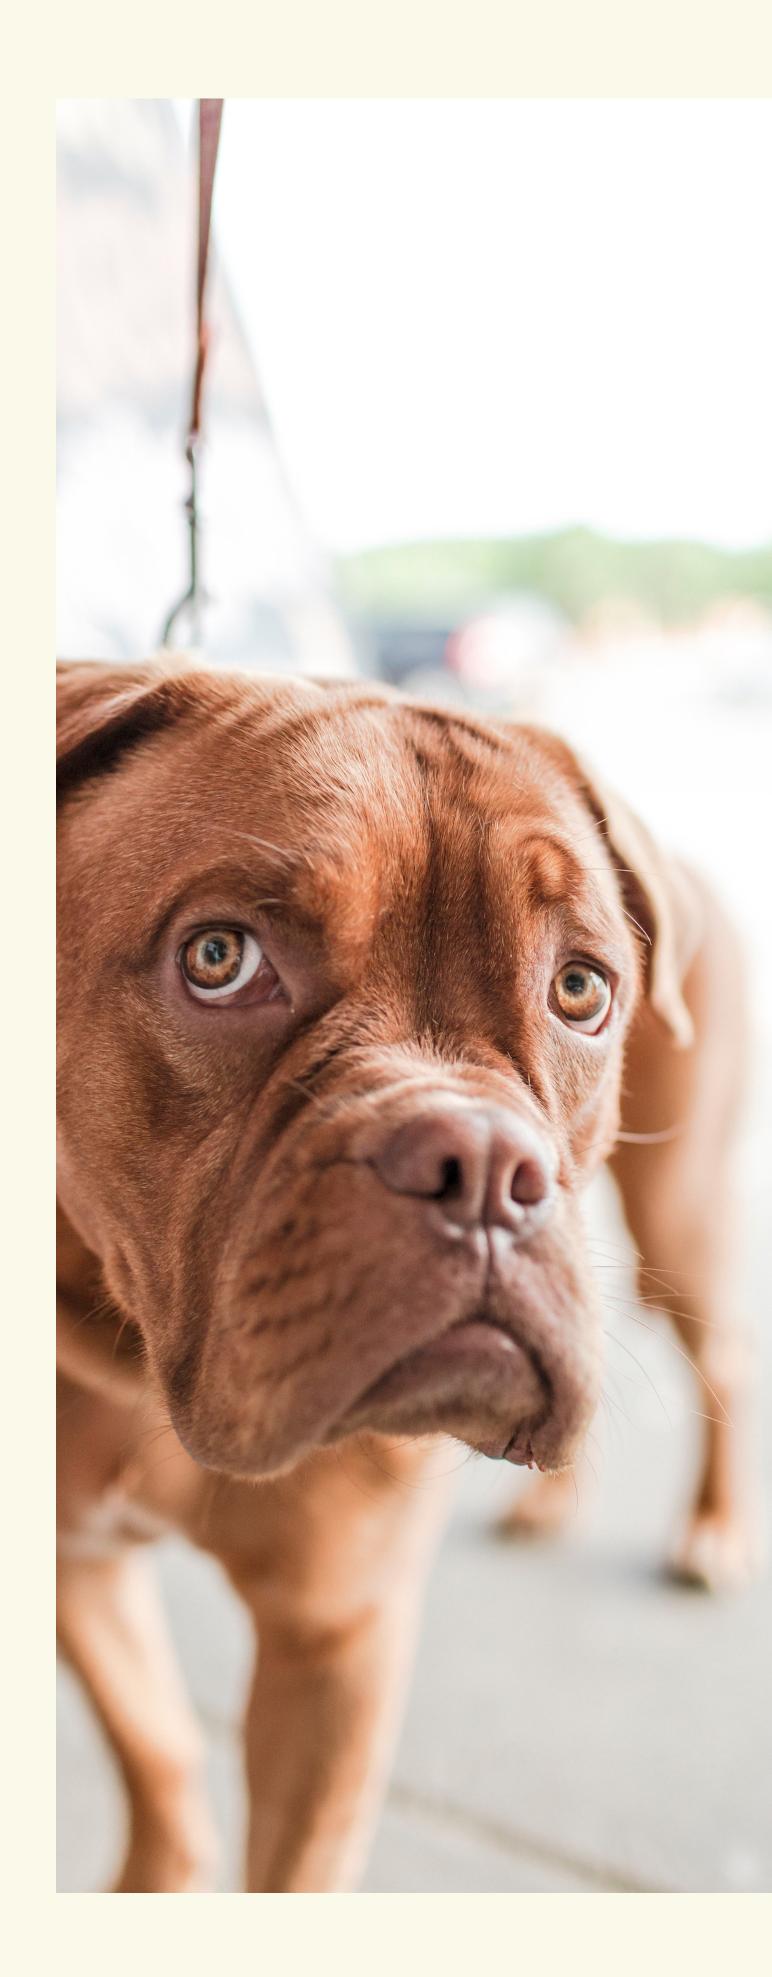

Yes, lives are coming back to track and hotels and restaurants are reopening. People have started going to their work place again. But that does not change the fact that this crisis occurred and our stray animals are dependent on us.

OBJECTIVE

Micro Nation is here with a challenge to design a small living unit for stray animals (dogs, cats, cows etc.) at street level, where there is facility of dumping your leftovers and vegetable peels for stray animals.

- 1. The unit should have the facility of shed for these animals for times like rain and winter.
- 2. There is no minimum or maximum area restriction. But the unit size must be conventional for construction in street colonies.
- 3. It should be self sufficient and must not require any official for maintenance. Weekly cleaning by government dirt pickers must do.
- 4.It should be a prototype that could be copied wherever needed, with bare minimum changes (if required).
